Christians sometimes believe that the God of the Old Testament is somehow different from the “loving” God of the New Testament. This is a heresy that was dismissed by the earliest Christians. The passage in Leviticus shows compassion has always characterized God’s law. God commands that farmers leave the edges of the field and some fruit unharvested, so that the poor and alien may glean them for food. It is in Leviticus that followers are instructed to love their neighbors as they love themselves. In Matthew’s gospel, Jesus intensifies and expands the demands of the law, commanding that followers turn the other cheek, go the extra mile, and extend love not only to neighbors but also to enemies and persecutors.
The congregation is asked to remain silent during the prelude as a time of prayer and meditation.

Thanksgiving and Communion

This morning we give thanks for Duke Divinity School and its work in forming students in Christian discipleship and nurturing them in love and service to Christ and the Church. A representative brings a stole and a glass cross to the altar.

In Durham we remember those who are homeless or are in unstable housing situations, and the organizations that work to offer safe shelter, access to affordable housing, and opportunities for home ownership. A representative brings a blanket to the altar.

An active member of both Duke Lutherans and Presbyterian Campus Ministry, Hannah is also a Chapel PathWays Scholar and a regular participant in Chapel worship. Throughout her time at Duke, she has been particularly interested in ecumenism and interfaith engagement, including being a founding member of the Undergraduate Faith Council on which she still sits. In her free time, she enjoys working with the Chapel youth group. She would like to give special thanks to all of her friends and family for supporting her throughout her sermon writing process.

Duke University Chapel

Duke Chapel is a grand building, suitable for hosting major events in the life of the University and its members; it acts as a moderator for the diversity of religious identity and expression on campus; and it is a Christian church of an unusually interdenominational character, with a tradition of stirring music, preaching, and liturgy. We welcome you to our life of worship, learning, dialogue, and service.
