Service of Worship

Fifth Sunday of Easter
May 18, 2014
Eleven o'clock in the morning

What does it mean to be a Christian community? As we move deeper into the season of Easter, the scriptures reflect on this question. In the John's gospel, Jesus identifies himself as the way, the truth, and the life, and he invites his disciples to participate in this way. In 1 Peter, the author speaks of disciples as living stones who will be gathered and bound together for the building of a spiritual house—the Church. Churches are not simply places of aesthetic beauty, but buildings of living and active stones.

*The congregation is asked to remain silent during the prelude as a time of prayer and meditation.
The Chapel welcomes families with children. If at any time during the service your child needs a place for active play, please know there is a nursery in the Chapel basement.*

NEWS ABOUT THE CHAPEL

The University recently announced an extended closure of the Chapel nave for a restoration project that will rehabilitate the ceiling, replace the roof, restore several stained glass windows and much of the woodwork, and clean the floors and walls. Next year, the Chapel nave will close to the public on May 11, 2015, and reopen in the spring of 2016. The Chapel community will continue to worship together each week and Sunday services will remain on campus during the restoration project. The Chapel's Media Ministry will also continue during this time. This time of restoration will be an opportunity for the Chapel community be a "church without walls," and live into the long-held belief that the Chapel is more than just a building. For further details regarding the project, and for updates on locations for services and events during the closure, please visit www.chapel.duke.edu/contact/restoration.

CHAPEL ANNOUNCEMENTS

In recent years, they have performed in New York, Georgia, Washington DC, and Chicago, singing for such notable conductors as Simon Carrington (Yale), Z. Randall Stroope (composer), Daniel Bara (UGA), Eric Nelson (Emory University), and many more.
