AT THE CROSSING

FINDING SANCTUARY SPEAKER SERIES

In collaboration with the Penny Pilgram George Women's Leadership Initiative, Interfaith Engagement at Duke Chapel is inviting four dynamic women to campus this spring. These women will reflect publicly on the ways in which their lives and work meet at the intersections of faith-based advocacy and social justice. Their public talks will explore ways each has embodied risk-taking, perseverance, and reflection in order to enact change for the common good.

WOMEN WARRIORS: REVOLUTIONARY LOVE IN THE ERA OF ENORMOUS RAGE

VALARIE KAUR, SIKH INTERFAITH ACTIVIST

APRIL 24 | 6 P.M. | GOODSON CHAPEL
DUKE DIVINITY SCHOOL

As part of the Chapel's Finding Sanctuary speaker series, Valarie Kaur will speak in the Divinity School's Goodson Chapel about "Women Warriors: Revolutionary Love in the Era of Enormous Rage." Kaur is a civil rights lawyer, award-winning filmmaker, and Sikh interfaith leader. She is also the founder of Groundswell Movement, a multi-faith online organizing community, as well as the Yale Visual Law Project, which trains law students to make films that change policy. Her films include Divided We Fall (2008) about hate crimes after 9/11; Alienation (2011), a short film about families swept up in immigration raids; The Worst of the Worst: Portrait of a Supermax (2012), a documentary on the practice of solitary confinement in prisons; and Oak Creek: In Memorium (2012), a viral short film on the 2012 mass shooting at the Sikh Temple of Wisconsin.
