Service of Worship

Seventh Sunday after Pentecost

July 15, 2012

Eleven o'clock in the morning

∞ Keeping the heart of the University listening to the heart of God ∞

"Salome with the head of St. John the Baptist," by Caravaggio, c. 1607.

A plumb line is a tool used to determine depth and whether or not something is perfectly vertical and upright. The prophet Amos describes a terrifying vision in which the people of Israel have not been deemed upright when a plumb line is placed in their midst, and he foretells destruction and ruin. In Mark's gospel, King Herod hears of the mighty acts of Jesus' disciples, and Herod worries that John the Baptist, whom he agreed to have killed, has been raised. Herod is haunted by his decision to tangle with a power greater than his own.

At the close of today's service, the Lord's Supper will be celebrated in the Memorial Chapel located to the left of the chancel. Immediately following the Lord's Supper, a service of prayer for healing will be held. The service consists of prayers for healing and wholeness, with anointing and laying on of hands. All are invited.

The congregation is asked to remain silent during the prelude as a time of prayer and meditation.

The Heavens Are Telling (from Creation)

Franz Joseph Haydn
(1732-1809)

The heavens are telling the glory of God,
The wonder of his work displays the firmament.
Today that is coming speaks it the day,
The night that is gone to following night.
The heavens are telling the glory of God,
The wonder of his work displays the firmament.
In all the lands resounds the word,
Never unperceived, ever understood.
The heavens are telling the glory of God,
The wonder of his work displays the firmament.
